TIMEOUT FOR COACHING... FREE AGENCY SEASON BRINGS SAVINGS

Many of the big dealers try to drum up interest during the off season and liquidate some of their older inventory. Lots of jerseys from the NHL and various professional minor leagues get marked down. In my early years as a game worn collector, I was always bummed that collegiate collectors were overlooked in this regard. Just imagine if every D-I hockey program opened their equipment room doors and offered up inventory at discounted prices. What if you could take that collegiate game worn that has been collecting dust in your closet and put in the Game Worn Transfer Portal and trade it for something different? All right, let's do it!

AT THE END OF REGULATION... CONFERENCE CHANGES... AGAIN

After a couple quiet seasons, we've now seen another team plucked out of the unexpectedly large pool of schools currently playing independent Division-I hockey. The Arizona State Sun Devils have come to terms with the NCHC to begin conference play starting with the 2024-25 season. While many college hockey fans hoped the Sun Devils would have held out and tried to urge other Pac 12 schools to start D-I hockey, the announced departure of five teams from the conference leaves the Pac 12 currently on life support. Clearly this is not a solid foundation for a potential new hockey conference. Now, if only ASU can just get that pesky free-loading NHL Coyotes franchise out of their building... Maybe ASU could give them some pointers about playing an all-road game schedule until they have a suitable rink of their own?

Farther North, CCHA associate member Augustana University will dip their toes into Division I hockey. The Vikings will play each CCHA member in a two-game series either at home or on the road this season. Next season the Vikings will swap locations, again playing each CCHA member team in a single two-game series. Augustana will assume full membership with a complete 26-game CCHA schedule starting with the 2025-26 season.
